YEAR

Mrs. G. A. Lobban

1907

I bring you more blessings than terrors;
  I bring you more sunlight than gloom;
I tear out your page of old errors,
  And hide them away in Time's tomb;
I reach you clean hands and lead on to the lands
  Where the lilies of peace are in bloom.

SEASON

Mrs. May B. Ross

SPRING

And thou, O virgin queen of spring,
  Shalt from thy dark and lowly bed,
Bursting thy green sheath's silken string
  Unveil thy charms and perfume shed

SEASON

Mrs. Jas. A. Kemper

AUTUMN

The autumn time has come,
On woods that dream of bloom,
And over purpling vines
The low sun fainter shines.

SEASON

Mrs. Georgia Parker

SUMMER

Bathed in glad sunshine,
The sleeping world lies;
Green are the whispering trees,
Fragrant with perfume,
And joyous with song,
Murmurs the soft summer breeze.

SEASON

Mrs. J. T McGarvey

WINTER

Winter day, frosty day,
God a cloak on all doth lay.
On the earth the snow he shedeth;
O'er the lambs a fleece he spreadeth;
Gives the birds a coat of feathers
To protect them from the weather.

January, the first of the glad new year,
Not as bleak as it seems,
When the snow-drops peep forth from their winter beds,
Brings joy as doth the sunbeams.

Sorry my dears, I feel for you,
For down in Florida where I roam
Violets bloom the whole year through.

A bank of the crab-tree's coral shower;
A blushing hint of the hawthorn's flower;
A purple mist where the violets linger;
A Jack-in-the-pulpit's warning finger;
A riot of rustling and buzzing and humming—
O, May is here—and summer is coming.

Days fairest and rarest to all do I bring,
Then ought not our hearts in the June time to sing?
The honeysuckle blossom is hiding the sweet,
The humming bird searches it and finds there his treat.
Now let us from nature a good lesson draw,
And find our life's sweets as the bird that we saw.

Cool days of night divide days' billowed hills of heat.
The dove is mourning for his mate. The fierce storms beat.
Hear poppy's red and lily's gold
And hush that lies on field and fold.
The year is at its flood in fruit and flower:
God's answer to the sower's faith, the ploughman's prayer.

September is the gayest month,
Of all the twelve, I think,
Then all the trees new dresses wear —
Some red, some browm, some pink.
'Tis not with them an old, old story,
But a new one and very dear —
For this rare month's flower is the morning glory,
The glory of all the year.

Love turns life's sorrows into tender cheer.
